Excerpt: . . . of the same parentage, but place them in the same neighborhood as near as possible. When the knowledge of the early history or parentage of the child would be a hindrance to its future progress in life, such a child is to be placed out at such distance from its early surroundings that there will be a reasonable certainty that its history will not follow it. Such visiting agent is to visit the children so placed out, and is to apportion the permanent homes found by him among the dependent children in the various counties of the State, in such manner as to equitably distribute his services. He is to keep a complete itemized record of his work, and report concerning the care, condition, education of every child visited, to said Board, also to the institution or authorities from which it was received. He is...
